

星威华商论坛 What users can do

Proposed feature set — nothing here is specified in the deck or the mockup, so this is our recommendation

Designed around what the deck's sample posts actually are: a business saying who it is and who it wants to meet — 一个双向的商业对接社区，而非单纯的资讯站

- ✓ Ships at launch — phase 2
- Deferred — phase 2.5+

审核中

Comments go through the same review as posts.

✗ No dislike button. Your word list rates 骗子 and 被骗了 as risky because public accusations against businesses are a liability. A dislike counter is that same risk with a number attached — live instantly, never reviewed, sitting on someone else's listing. And since the businesses here compete, it is a one-click way to push a rival out of 热门话题. Use 举报/Report instead.

Why the fields above the text matter. All four sample posts follow the same shape, so we capture it at entry rather than as free prose. That is what makes 检索用户/产品/服务 a real query instead of keyword soup, makes filters work, and gives the moderation check a cleaner signal — a post whose fields say apparel manufacturer seeking brands but whose body discusses 换汇 is visibly incongruent.

WHAT THE AUTHOR SEES because posts are checked first

审核中

Under review

visible to author only

Sits in 我的帖子 with a review-time expectation. Still editable. Nothing is on the forum yet.

已发布

Published

public

Live with its own link. Any later edit returns it to review — otherwise approve-then-edit would defeat the whole arrangement.

未通过

Not approved

visible to author only

Shows the category and a rewrite hint — never the word that matched, which would hand a bad actor something to iterate against. Editable, and resubmits to the queue.

Every state change sends an email.

With posts checked before they appear, a poster hits submit and sees nothing — so silence is the single biggest UX risk in this design. It reads as a broken site, and they don't come back.

ONE DECISION FOR CYS

DISLIKES – YES / NO

You asked what we propose for likes, comments and dislikes. Likes yes, comments yes, dislikes no. Renaming the like to 有用/Useful gives you a signal that means something on a matching board — "this supplier is relevant to me" — and gives 热门话题 something real to rank on, which it currently has no source for. Dislikes we would leave out:

- It publishes an unreviewed negative judgement onto a business listing — the opposite of the pre-publication rule you asked for everywhere else.
- Your own word list treats accusations against businesses as a risk (骗子, 被骗了). This reintroduces that risk as a product feature.
- The members compete with each other, so the motive to abuse it is built in.

If you want a negative signal anyway, the least-harmful form is a private downvote that feeds ranking and is never shown — but we would not ship even that at launch, because a poster whose listing quietly stops appearing cannot be given an explanation.

Not a discussion forum THE CONSTRAINT

Every feature above is judged on one question: does it help a real business get found by the right counterparty? The deck's four sample posts are all the same shape — "I am this business, I want to meet that kind of partner" — so this is a business directory with discussion attached, not a message board.

Reddit-style engagement mechanics optimise for attention on opinions instead, which is why we've reframed the like and dropped the dislike rather than importing the usual set wholesale.

Open questions NEED A DECISION

- 1 · Dislikes — happy with the recommendation? Only item here that changes the data model.
- 2 · Read access — we suggest posts publicly readable, posting and contact details login-gated. Public read is what makes the forum work as a shopfront and findable at all.
- 3 · Forum language — Chinese-only or bilingual? Every label here has a CN/EN pair, but the word list is Chinese-only, so English posts would be only half-checked.
- 4 · Comments — reviewed before they appear too, or posts only? Assumed yes above.
- 5 · Verified badge — does CYS verify a company, or is it self-declared?

Phasing PHASE 2

✓ AT LAUNCH

Accounts, profiles, structured posting, edit/delete, comments + replies, 有用, 举报, 收藏, 分享, follow a topic, search + filters, 最新/热门, 我的帖子 with statuses, email notifications, 联系对方

➤ AFTER LAUNCH

Follow a poster, image uploads, in-app notifications, semantic matching, reputation display

Auth routes land in phase 1 — the header shows 注册 | 登录 on every page and would otherwise be a dead link.
